I wasn't sure if it was because of the snake venom or if it was just a cold. To make matters worse, it began snowing, soon turning into a full-blown blizzard. By a stroke of luck, however, we found an opening in the rocks where we could wait the snow out.

Sorry we ended up like this...

No... Don't worry... about it...

The blizzard refused to let up, and my fever only got worse. It became clear that we would have to spend the night in that cavity. Frankly, that felt pathetic, but I had no choice other than to rest up...

I'm always... causing trouble... Useless...

gloom...
